

Podcast 49 - Music to my Ears

by Rob McCormack - Wednesday, November 05, 2014

<http://slowenglish.info/?p=1425>

Learn English while learning about daily life in Australia, with Rob McCormack Podcast Number 49 – Music to my Ears

<http://traffic.libsyn.com/slowenglish/podcast49.mp3>

Hi,

Music has been important in my life and I'm sure it's the same with many people. Before I was a teenager, the Beatles were the biggest thing in music.

I can still remember listening to my favourite Beatles song played on a small 45rpm record. The song was called 'I Saw Her Standing There' and I still love that song today. I was about 11 years old at the time. Back then we thought that rock and roll music was ours and that it was only for young people, but time has proven that not to be correct. It's still our music, but we have all grown old and we still love the music. Today, age is no barrier to any type of music. Amazingly, both Ringo Starr and Paul McCartney from the Beatles are still making great rock and roll music into their 70's. Another example is The Rolling Stones, who were also big for me in my teenage years.

My favourite song of theirs was Jumpin' Jack Flash which I can remember first hearing when I was in high school in 1968. Incredibly, the Rolling Stones are still doing concerts in 2014, with huge crowds still coming to hear all their big hit songs such as Jumpin Jack Flash and Satisfaction.

When I was at university, I became interested in the electric guitar, played by such great rock musicians as Jimi Hendrix, Led Zeppelin and Deep Purple.

This influenced me to start learning to play guitar in my early 20s. This has become a life-long hobby for me and something which has brought me great joy. Playing a musical instrument has proved to be such a wonderful pastime. I can highly recommend it to anyone.

As you can imagine, Australian music has also been a strong influence in my life. I can remember early Australian performers like Billy Thorpe and the Aztecs and The Easybeats, who, from the mid 1960s, helped turn many Australian teenagers, including me, into followers of rock and roll. It was early in the 1970s, when I was going to University, that a distinctively Australian style of rock music came into being. It became known in Australia as 'Pub Rock'. Pub Rock was so called because these rock bands and performers played their music in Australian pubs or hotels. The music was loud, full of energy and had a hard edge to it. Some of these bands and performers went on to have long careers, including some who became internationally famous. The most famous of all was AC/DC. Other great pub rock bands that I loved included Billy Thorpe and the Aztecs, Buffalo, The Angels, Cold Chisel and Midnight Oil.

INXS also started their musical career in Australian pubs and went on to have a great international career. Sadly, some of these great performers are no longer with us, including Michael Hutchence, the lead singer of INXS, Billy Thorpe and Doc Neeson, the lead singer of The Angels.

But their musical legacy lives on and we can all listen again and again to their many recordings or watch video clips on youtube. Others continue to make great music today. This includes Jimmie Barnes from Cold Chisel who went on to have a very successful solo career in Australian music and some international success as well. Adding his solo and Cold Chisel albums together, he has had 27 hit albums over the years in Australia and is still making recordings today.

Another fantastic Australian performer that I've always enjoyed is John Farnham.

He started performing in 1964 and is still doing concert tours with great success and popularity today. His 1986 album Whispering Jack is the highest selling album in Australian history. It also had some international success, especially in Europe, including reaching the number 1 spot on the album charts in Sweden.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1em08fq8of0>

I can remember staying in a hotel in Austria with my family around the year 2000, on one of our holiday trips to Europe. Music was playing through the loud speaker in the hotel lobby and I recognized John Farnham's voice. It was then that I realized that Australian performers were achieving success outside of Australia. Of course, our most famous international performer is Kylie Minogue, who has sold over 70 million records around the world and continues to record and have sell-out concerts, including in Europe and the United Kingdom where she now lives.

I have to admit that I'm really not that familiar with many of the new Australian bands, singers and performers of today. However I hear enough of it on radio and on television to know that we have many talented young performers who are achieving great success, such as The Veronicas, Guy Sebastian, Jessica Mauboy, Ricki-Lee Coulter and Karise Eden, just to name a few.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=W_rZ9rHFwGY

I hope Australian performers continue to do great things at home and overseas.

If you have a question or a comment to make, please leave it in the comments box at the bottom of this page. Or, you can send me an email at rob@slowenglish.info. I would love to hear from you. Tell me where you live, a little bit about yourself and what you think of my Slow English podcast. I will write back to you, in English of course. If you would like to take a short quiz to see if you have understood this podcast, you will also find it on my website. Goodbye until next time.

Rob

[WpProQuiz 34]

Vocabulary

45rpm record = a small black plastic circle used to play music achieving = to get, to obtain album = a collection of songs amazingly = when something is hard to believe band = a group of musicians barrier = something which can stop you careers = the time from when you start working to when you finish working concerts = when many people watch performers play music distinctively = a feature that belongs to a person or thing electric guitar = a guitar which uses electricity to make the sound familiar = to know something or someone well fantastic = very, very good followers = people who like something and take an interest in it hard edge = not soft high school = a school for 12 to 17 year old children hits = when a song becomes very, very popular hobby = an activity you do for fun huge = large, big incredibly = when something is hard to believe influenced = when you help someone to make a decision internationally = in many countries around the world journey = when you go from one place to another joy = happiness

lead singer = the person in a band who stands out front and sings legacy = what is left after you have gone life-long = when something lasts most of your life lobby = the entrance hall in a hotel musical instrument = plays music. For example, guitar, violin, piano, trumpet musicians = people who play musical instruments pastime = hobby

performers = people who play music so that others can watch and enjoy popularity = when something is liked by a lot of people proven = when something is shown to be correct pubs = places where you can meet with friends and buy alcoholic drinks like beer reaching = to go up recommend = to tell another person that something is good recordings = to make a copy of music so that it can be played again and again rock and roll = a type of music so called = when something is named or described solo = by yourself

style = a way of doing something talented = to have a lot of skill and ability teenager = a person who is aged 13 to 19 theirs = it belongs to them tours = when you travel from place to place video clips = small movies or videos. For example, on www.youtube.com